- Description of danger the derogation is intended to address

danger to public health

Because of the current COVID-19 pandemic shortage of virucidal disinfectants was reported from all regions. The shortage affects professional users, including healthcare, and general public as well.

danger to animal health

(describe briefly the danger, the area affected and the effects of the danger)

danger to environment

(describe briefly the danger, the area affected and the effects of the danger)

- Geographical area of use

Hungary

- Absence of any other means to contain the danger

The demand for disinfectants could not be covered by regular production capacity, which is already stunted by the shortage of packaging materials and more severe shortage of active substances from listed sources. National Public Health Center considered that allowing new producers to make disinfectants available and releasing the restriction of being listed in case of alcohols is justified.

- Limited and controlled use

In case of elimination of the shortage of disinfectants, production shall be ceased without delay.
