3. The Parties recognise the urgent need to address climate change, as outlined by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) in its special report entitled "Global Warming of 1.5°C", as a contribution to the economic, social and environmental objectives of sustainable development.
4. In light of the above, the objective of this Annex is to enhance the integration of sustainable development, notably its labour¹ and environmental dimensions, in the Parties' trade and investment relationship, including through strengthening dialogue and cooperation.

ARTICLE 2

Right to Regulate and Levels of Protection

1. The Parties recognise the right of each Party to determine its sustainable development policies and priorities, to establish the levels of domestic environmental and labour protection it deems appropriate and to adopt or modify its relevant law and policies. Such levels, law and policies shall be consistent with each Party's commitment to the internationally recognised standards and agreements referred to in this Annex.
2. Each Party shall strive to ensure that its relevant law and policies provide for, and encourage, high levels of environmental and labour protection, and shall strive to improve such levels, law and policies.

¹ For the purposes of this Annex, the term "labour" means the strategic objectives of the ILO under the Decent Work Agenda, which is expressed in the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization.

3. A Party shall not weaken or reduce the levels of protection afforded in its environmental or labour law with the intention to encourage trade or investment.

6. The Parties recognise each other's developmental policies and priorities with respect to their trade and investment aspirations in accordance with the Special and Differential Treatment provisions under the WTO Agreement and consistent with each Party's commitments to the internationally recognised standards and agreements under this Annex.

5. Each Party shall effectively implement the respective ILO Conventions that the EAC Partner State(s) and the EU Member States have ratified.
6. Recalling the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization, the Parties note that the violation of fundamental principles and rights at work cannot be invoked or otherwise used as a legitimate comparative advantage and that labour standards should not be used for protectionist trade purposes.
7. Each Party shall promote through its law and practices the ILO Decent Work Agenda as set out in the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization, in particular with regard to:
 - (a) decent working conditions for all with regard to inter alia wages and earnings, working hours, enhancing social security, other conditions of work and social protection;

In this respect, the Parties reiterate their respective commitments pursuant to Article 3 of this Annex including regarding the effective implementation of the ILO Conventions related to gender equality and the elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation.

4. Each Party shall strive to ensure that its relevant law and policies provide for, and encourage, equal rights, treatment and opportunities between men and women. Each Party shall strive to improve such law and policies, without prejudice to the right of each Party to establish its own scope and levels of protection for equal opportunities for men and women. Such law and policies shall be consistent with each Party's commitments to the internationally recognised standards and agreements referred to in this Article.
5. The Parties reiterate their commitments pursuant to Article 2 of this Annex in relation to their respective law aimed at ensuring gender equality or equal opportunities for women and men.
6. The Parties recognise the importance of international environmental governance, in particular the role of the UN Environment Assembly (UNEA) of the UN Environment Programme (UNEP), as well as multilateral environmental agreements (MEAs) as a response of the international community to global or regional environmental challenges and stress the need to enhance mutual supportiveness between trade and environment policies, rules and measures.
2. In light of paragraph 1, each Party shall effectively implement the MEAs, protocols and amendments that it has ratified.
3. The Parties shall periodically exchange information on their respective situations as regards the ratification of MEAs, including their protocols and amendments.
