2. Demographics and work-life balance

- The self-conception of HUK-COBURG has always been that of an employee-oriented and family-friendly company. This is basically the key statement of our guiding principles (no. 10):

“The HUK-COBURG Insurance Group is a progressive and socially-minded employer; our operational tasks aimed at customer and member satisfaction can only be met with qualified and motivated employees. A qualification-related and performance-oriented salary scale for employees, a purposeful educational training and the compliance with employee-related leadership principles as well as a family-oriented employment policy are important preconditions for it.”

- As a financial service provider, we consider our employees to be of particular importance for us. Therefore, we feel that challenges for personnel work are central challenges for the success of the company.

2. Demographics and work-life balance

- With regard to the employment policy, we understand the demographic development to be one of the most important tasks for the future.
- We see a close connection between the demographic development and our commitment to the reconciliation of work and family. We regard the demographic development as a challenge for our company which has many different aspects :
 1. Development of the age structure within the group
 2. Attracting of new, qualified employees
 3. Retention of employees
 4. Development of the age structure in society

2. Demographics and work-life balance

1. Development of the age structure within the group: How do we deal with ageing employees?
 - ➔ We particularly care about the topics of health, lifelong learning, qualified initial training
2. Attracting of new, qualified employees: Where and how do we get such employees?
 - ➔ For many qualified employees and managers the topic of family is an important one. We can offer support and thus are an attractive employer targeting qualified staff.

2. Demographics and work-life balance

3. Retention of employees: How do we keep our employees – in the different stages of life?
 - ➔ We invest in our employees – and we want to retain and keep them over many years. This particularly applies to life stages in which family may be more important than work. We provide flexibility during different stages of life. We support the courage to have children and to engage in professional development.
4. Development of the age structure in society: How do we support our employees to be able to deal with demographic changes in their own family environment?
 - ➔ Employees have to face the problem of taking over the care of family members. In this case as well, we provide support committing ourselves to the reconciliation of work and family.

2. Demographics and work-life balance

HUK-COBURG – a family-friendly company

- The audit was developed on the initiative and on behalf of the Hertie Foundation Charity, and ever since it has been a recognized instrument for the promotion of a family-oriented employment policy
 - In July 2005 HUK-COBURG was awarded the “berufundfamilie®” (work and family) basic certificate
 - After a successful re-auditing, the certificate awards ceremony took place in Berlin in June 2008. Our systematic and sustainable development continues!
 - With the decision to undergo the audit “berufundfamilie®” HUK-COBURG sets new standards for a family-conscious corporate policy. The objectives involved refer to various fields of action, among others development of human resources, family services and framework for the employment policy

2. Demographics and work-life balance

- HUK-COBURG has voluntarily opted to undergo certification, to critically examine the existing, to implement new measures and to make a considerable investment in this topic.
This is done because
 - The company attaches great importance to qualified, motivated, and committed staff
 - There will still be need for good staff in the future, and we want to continue to grow
 - We want to rise to the challenge of the demographic change
- We want to
 - Sensitize, train and support our management staff
 - Offer concrete supporting measures to our staff, and by doing this
 - Keep the balance between employee and employer interests in mind
- As a result, we have a win-win situation for both employees and employer

3. Measures and practical examples

3.1. Reduced full-time employment for management staff

We enable our first line managers to accomplish their tasks in “reduced full-time” (part-time).

Objectives:

- Improved time compatibility of work and family also for management staff.
- Capture the management potential, in particular of young women, for the company

In practice:

- Maximum reduction to 25 hours/week possible, support through deputy (extra pay)
- Capacities are not saved but built up within the team
- This way e.g. mothers on parental leave may flexibly work some additional hours if they choose to do so

3. 2. Alternating telework

We enable parents on parental leave - in certain departments where it is technically possible - to work from at home.

Objectives:

- Improved, more flexible reconciliation of work and family (incl. reduction of travel times)
- Retention of qualified employees
- Preservation of know-how

In practice:

- Employees shall work on site one day a week in order to obtain necessary information and to keep up with the team.
- Currently, we are examining whether this opportunity can also be offered to staff members with relatives in need of care.

3. 3. Consistent information of the staff members about family-minded measures

We enable staff members to obtain current information on all measures and service offers.

Objectives:

In practice:

- The whole further education offer is reviewed and planned with regard to part-time
- The company agreement on training regulates the legal entitlement:
“...human resource development concepts and the corresponding training offers shall be designed in alignment with the employees' particular living conditions...”
- In exceptional cases, part-time employees (single parents!) receive financial support for child care if the attendance of full-time training classes (special training) is unavoidable.

3. 6. Child care offers with external cooperation partners

We support parents in caring for their children by cooperating with local institutions or by providing financial support.

4. How we benefit

For us, improved reconciliation of work and family is a business objective. We want well-qualified, motivated employees who “keep their life in balance”.

But we also want to retain employees and keep them satisfied and productive for many years. Their productivity also pays off for us. As an example:

Estimated costs for training, further education, induction and costs of limited functioning	1 employee	24 employees
after 6 months of parental leave	1,000.00	24,000.00
after 12 months of parental leave	5,000.00	120,000.00
after 24 months of parental leave	20,000.00	480,000.00
after 36 months of parental leave	40,000.00	960,000.00

We recognize the effects of demographic change and want to be pro-active at an early stage in this field in order to be able to tap our employees' full potential.

Therefore we do not have to be convinced – we already are convinced, because Employees who keep their (work-life) balance keep the company in balance!
